Subject: BPDG: BPDG to include CPRM on "Table A"

As Chairman of the Policy Group of the 4C Entity, LLC ("4C"), I am pleased to put forward the following:

4C submits that Content Protection for Recordable Media ("CPRM"), a recording protection technology licensed by 4C, is qualified for inclusion on Table A of the Compliance and Robustness Requirements.

Specifically, 4C asserts that CPRM qualifies under at least criterion 4 of the criteria proposed by 5C, CIG and MPAA companies in April. Criterion 4, in summary, calls for a technology to include output and recording controls to protect against unauthorized redistribution of audiovisual content, and to be expressly named as being permitted to be used for the output or recording of audiovisual content under the license applicable to a technology listed on Table A. 4C asserts that CPRM does include such controls, and, as noted in a prior message from DTLA, is so expressly named under the DTCP license. 4C further notes the comments made at the BPDG meeting held on April 29, 2002, in which six of the major content companies stated their agreement that CPRM should be included on Table A.

4C requests that the Final Report of the BPDG should list on Table A the CPRM technology, and any other technologies that satisfy the proposed criteria.

4C further requests that the Report include a recommendation that any means of regulation or enforcement for the Compliance and Robustness Requirements, to be discussed by the Parallel Group, should specify these technologies as Authorized Digital Output and Recording Technologies to protect Unscreened and Marked Content.

Further, attached are the associated obligations applicable to CPRM, as previously provided to the BPDG.

If anyone has any questions concerning CPRM, please do not hesitate to contact me.

[], Chair, 4C Policy Group
